

PRESENTAZIONE

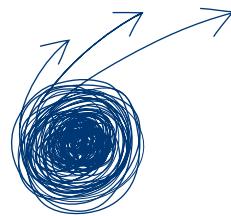

Secondo il Programma delle Nazioni Unite per lo Sviluppo, l'80% della popolazione mondiale ottiene solo il 5,4% del credito erogato dal sistema bancario. L'esclusione finanziaria è presente anche nei paesi ricchi: in Italia oltre 2 milioni 900 mila famiglie, il 14,1% del totale, non accedono ai servizi bancari (indagine sui bilanci delle famiglie di Banca d'Italia). Nei paesi dell'Unione Europea può accadere che gran parte delle microimprese di nuova costituzione non abbia accesso al credito (Agence Pour la Créditation d'Entreprises).

In molti paesi in via di sviluppo e anche in paesi industrializzati è emerso, in risposta all'esclusione finanziaria, un complesso di esperienze denominate microcredito e, in un significato più completo, microfinanza. Oggi assistiamo alla diffusione della microfinanza nel mondo e allo sviluppo di tecniche bancarie specifiche che rendono possibile l'accesso a servizi finanziari ai microimprenditori che finora non ne erano inclusi.

L'Assemblea Generale dell'ONU, riconosciuta la rilevanza del fenomeno, ha proclamato il 2005 "Anno Internazionale del Microcredito". Il Segretario Generale dell'ONU Kofi Annan ha affermato che tale iniziativa "sottolinea l'importanza della microfinanza come parte integrante del nostro sforzo collettivo per raggiungere i Millennium Development Goals, gli obiettivi di sviluppo del millennio".

Il convegno "Investire in microfinanza. Il ruolo delle banche", uno dei primi eventi italiani dell'Anno Internazionale del Microcredito, ha l'obiettivo di illustrare le migliori pratiche di intervento nel settore e di promuovere il ruolo che le banche possono svolgere in qualità di investitori in microfinanza e come fornitori diretti di servizi microfinanziari.

Investing in Microfinance

The Role of Banks

INTRODUCTION

Eighty per cent of people worldwide have access to only 5.4% of disbursed credit. Without a way to save and borrow, micro-entrepreneurs in developing countries face a huge obstacle to growth. The problem also reaches closer to home. A study conducted by Banca d'Italia shows that, in Italy, 2.9 millions of families, 14.1% of the total, do not have access to financial services by commercial banks. According to Agence Pour la Création d'Entreprises, as much as 80% of new businesses in certain EU member states cannot obtain credit.

The United Nations declared 2005 the International Year of Microcredit. UN Secretary-General, Kofi Annan, supports this initiative saying it underscores the importance of microfinance as an "integral part of our collective effort to meet the Millennium Development Goals".

It is against this backdrop that we present Investing in Microfinance: The Role of Banks, to launch the year in Italy. The conference brings together microfinance institutions, multilateral agencies, private investors and commercial and cooperative banks from around the world. They will share best practices in microfinance and discuss investment issues and opportunities in this sector.
